You can do the transition in the custom live video, but the end result is a full wipe. When the clip is finished, the video cuts back to the beginning. This is annoying since you don't see the clip complete or even end. I do think that the idea is good and could have a place. I don't have a problem with videos being deleted. I'd rather have the option of having the video fully deleted than have a delay. Click to expand... I think that is so I know how to leave that part out then you don't have that problem. I have some tutorials for that. Let me find the right one. One of the options would be to open the custom live video on your PC, go to the transitions section, and add the "Interpolate video" effect to the transition line. I agree with you that this would be the best way. This is where I think it can be useful. That would have been what I would have gone with. I figured that if it was possible to do this 82157476af
